INTRODUCTION

In the performance of his duties as a parliamentary representative, each Member of the House of Representatives is entitled to an office within his Constituency and to organise the activities of that office as he sees fit, in accordance with approved policies.

The Office of the Parliament is responsible for providing guidance on the procedures and policies for the operations of Constituency Offices as may be recommended by the House Committee and approved by the Speaker of the House. Many of those policies are contained in this handbook.

The Clerk of the House, as Accounting Officer for the Parliament, is responsible for ensuring accountability of the funds expended for the operations of all Constituency Offices, in accordance with the Exchequer and Audit Act.

Jacqui Sampson-Meiguel
Clerk of the House
September 2015
ESTABLISHMENT OF A CONSTITUENCY OFFICE

One of the major functions of a Member of Parliament (MP) is that of representation. Section 70 of the Constitution states – ‘Trinidad and Tobago shall be divided into...constituencies and each such constituency shall return one member to the House of Representatives’. In this regard, arrangements are made by the Office of the Parliament to provide Constituency Offices for MPs to meet and engage their constituents. In contrast to the prestige of the Parliament Chamber, the functioning of Constituency Offices takes place far from the media spotlight and away from high profile politics. However, these offices assist in keeping elected representatives connected with their constituents.

On becoming an elected MP you will be responsible for establishing and managing a Constituency Office, and therefore you should be mindful of the following guidelines:

- The office must be conveniently located and easily accessible to walking, travelling and motoring constituents. Appropriate accommodation should be made for the elderly and for persons who are differently-abled.
- The Constituency Office should be inviting and have cross-partisan appeal. Therefore, the display of party signs, symbols, posters and political party colours are prohibited. The Office of the Parliament will use standardised colours for Constituency Offices.

- The purpose of the Constituency Office is to communicate your commitment to constituents.

ACCOMMODATION

1.01 Entitlement

(a) MPs are entitled to establish one main office within their Constituency. However, subject to approval by the House Committee, the Office of the Parliament will assist with the establishment of a maximum of three (3) sub-offices, in constituencies with a large, geographically dispersed population.

(b) The Property and Real Estate Services Division (PRESD) will provide Members with suitable and acceptable accommodation in government buildings where available. The Office of the Parliament seeks to have all Constituency Offices located in state owned buildings as far as is possible.

(c) In constituencies where government buildings are not available, the Office of the Parliament will rent a suitable office at a maximum cost of $15,000.00 per month for a main office, and $5,000.00 per month, in total, for a maximum of three (3) sub-offices.
(d) In cases where the full amount for rental of a main office is not utilized, the remaining sum may be applied towards the rental cost of sub-offices.

(d) The Office of the Parliament will only pay the approved maximum rent of $15,000.00 for main offices and $5,000, in total, for all sub-offices in accordance with the established procedure. Accordingly, any unauthorised office/sub-office will be operated at the private expense of the MP.

(e) Members are responsible for ensuring that the Constituency Office meets safety and security requirements as well as the protection of Constituency Office staff, office assets and information and the general public.

1.02 Rental Agreements

(f) Members are not permitted to enter into lease agreements. Negotiations in relation to Constituency Offices, as well as the execution of tenancy agreements, will be between the Office of the Parliament and the landlord for the particular premises under consideration.

(g) The Office of the Parliament must not enter into rental arrangements which create a conflict of interest.
(h) Members will be provided with a copy of the rental agreement for their Constituency Office. This rental agreement will detail the responsibilities of each party to the agreement (such as the payment of utility bills) and the terms and conditions governing the use of the premises.

1.03 Use of Constituency Office

(i) Constituency Offices are designed to encourage communication between the MP and all constituents, and must therefore be operated on a strictly non-partisan basis.

(j) A Constituency Office should not be used for non-constituency related activities, such as political party events, election campaigning or personal activities.

(k) The exterior signage located at the Constituency Office should not display the name or logo of a political party, use political party colours or contain statements of a recognisable and partisan nature.

1.04 Change of Member

(l) A Member shall vacate the Constituency Office within twenty-four (24) hours of his resignation.

(m) A newly elected Member shall take possession of the office within five (5) working days of being elected.
(n) All furniture and equipment owned by the Office of the Parliament must be handed over to the newly elected representative on the prescribed form and witnessed by a representative of the Clerk of the House.

1.05 Repairs and Maintenance
(o) A Member must report to the Office of the Parliament, as soon as practicable, any incident of fire, flood, break-in, theft, or other event which has resulted in damage or loss to his Constituency Office. In the case of fire, break-in or theft, police reports are mandatory and proof of the report will be required for insurance claims.

(p) Subject to the availability of funds, the Office of the Parliament will undertake to effect repairs to Constituency Offices located in government buildings which are in need of repair works following an assessment by the relevant personnel and the submission of a report.

(q) Staff of the Office of the Parliament shall visit Constituency Offices from time to time to provide appropriate services and support.

Development of Disciplinary Procedures
(d) Disciplinary action should be used as a tool to remedy an employee’s behavior. However, ensuring fairness should always be a paramount consideration. As employer, an MP must ensure that a resulting termination is not regarded as harsh, oppressive and/or contrary to the principles of good industrial relations practice.

Progressive Discipline
(e) The progressive form of disciplining employees allows employees the opportunity to correct problematic performance. Progressive discipline involves using increasingly harsh penalties for each occasion an employee violates work rules. In treating with poor performance standards, or more serious forms of misconduct, the Member must always give employees reasonable timeframes to allow for improvement.

Informal Action
(f) In certain instances, the Member may deem that minor conduct or performance matters are best dealt with informally. The option of dealing with minor conduct or performance infractions in an informal manner is within the complete discretion of the Member. The Member may discuss with the employee expected standards of conduct and/or performance and a time period during which conduct/performance is expected to improve.
(g) The Member should also advise the employee on the likely consequences if improvements are not apparent, such as formal disciplinary action being taken against the employee.

(h) When the conduct/performance of an employee has not improved in the time-frame discussed, a formal oral warning should be issued to the employee.

Formal Oral/Verbal Warning

(i) When an employee’s conduct or performance is unsatisfactory, the Member can then issue a formal oral warning. This warning should clearly and unambiguously state the employee’s infraction and a timeframe for improvement. The employee should be informed of the consequences if improvement is not forthcoming.

(j) Finally, the date, time, and content of the oral warning should be documented and a copy forwarded to the Clerk of the House to be placed on the employee’s file.

Written Warning

(k) Where an offence is more serious, or where conduct/performance does not improve after an oral warning, the employee can then be issued a written warning. The written warning must contain details of misconduct and, if previously warned, details surrounding the first warning. The warning must identify a time frame for improvement and the likely consequences if:
(1) improvement in conduct/performance is not forthcoming; or
(2) any further act of serious misconduct is committed.

(l) The employee must be informed that should any of the above occur, a final written warning will be issued.

(m) Finally, the date and time when the warning letter was issued should be documented and a copy forwarded to the Clerk of the House to be placed on the employee’s file. Such a letter should be hand delivered to the employee who should be made to sign as having received the warning letter.

Final Written Warning

(n) If performance standards do not improve or serious misconduct is repeated, the employee should be issued a final warning letter. The letter should detail the serious misconduct that has been repeated or the failure to improve conduct/performance within the time set. The letter must clearly indicate that it is a final warning letter, after which dismissal would result if there is a failure to improve performance or conduct.
(o) Finally, the date and time when the final warning letter was issued should be documented and a copy forwarded to the Clerk of the House to be placed on the employee’s file. The letter should be hand delivered to the employee who should be made to sign as having received the final warning letter.

(p) Samples of warning letters are attached at Appendix II of this Handbook.

2.07 Resignation/Termination of Employment

Dismissal (for cause)

(a) Having gone through all the steps of progressive discipline, if performance/conduct does not improve, or further serious misconduct occurs, the employee may be dismissed.

(b) In a dismissal/termination letter, clear and concise grounds for dismissal must be stated. The Member must detail the employee’s history of poor conduct/performance and/or repeated acts of serious misconduct. The letter should recall all disciplinary action previously taken against the employee. Reference should be made to the fact that the employee was warned in his final warning letter that further infractions would lead to dismissal.
Termination of Employment

(c) Under the sample employment contract, the services of an employee may be terminated by either party after notice is given in writing, one (1) month in advance.

(d) Members are advised that the Office of the Parliament must be informed, in writing, in the event of a resignation of an employee at the Constituency Office. Your correspondence must clearly state the effective date of resignation/termination. In the case of termination of employment, a copy of the letter sent to the employee terminated must be submitted to the Clerk of the House.

(e) The effective date of termination is the day immediately following the final day worked by the employee, or the day immediately following their final day of vacation leave. Information about the notice requirement of one (1) month as set forth in the sample agreement should be included in the termination letter. A sample of a termination letter is attached at Appendix II of this Handbook.

Severance Benefits

(f) Where the employee has worked for more than one (1) year but less than five (5) years, a severance of half month salary will be paid for each year completed.

(g) Where service of the employee is five (5) years and over, half month salary will be paid for each year of completed service up
