About this Guide

This guide provides a summary of expenditure for the Registration, Recognition and Certification Board for the period 2012-2018. It provides the Members of Parliament and stakeholders with an overview of the Board’s responsibilities. The primary purpose of this guide is to consolidate the information contained within the various Budget Documents pertaining to the Registration, Recognition and Certification Board, and provide readers with an analysis of same. This guide is based primarily on the Draft Estimates of Recurrent Expenditure.
Head 11: Registration, Recognition and Certification Board

Overview

The Registration Recognition and Certification Board (RRCB) was created by the Industrial Relations Act, Chap. 88:01 in 1972. The RRCB plays a critical role in promoting the integrity and credibility of our industrial relations system and in the protection of our workforce. It does so by shaping and strengthening the collective bargaining structure which determines the appropriate and majority trade union that can best represent workers. Empowered by the Section 33 of the Industrial Relations Act, Chapter 88:01, the mandate of the RRCB, inter alia:

- Certification of recognized majority unions;
- Making of agency shop orders; and
- Cancellation of certification of recognition.

This process is important to encouraging and enhancing the likelihood of a more viable and harmonious collective bargaining relationship between employers and the recognized majority union. The work of the Board facilitates workers’ right to freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining by joining a trade union of their choice. This is in keeping with both our Constitutional and our international labour obligations as we are signatory to the International Labour Organization Convention No. 87 – Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize Convention (1948) and No. 98 – Right to Organize and Collective Bargaining Convention (1949).¹

Secretary to Board (Accounting Officer): Mr. Brendon Tatt
