No. 18 of 2014

Fifth Session Tenth Parliament Republic of
Trinidad and Tobago

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

BILL

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago

THE CONSTITUTION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 2014

Explanatory Note

(These notes form no part of the Bill but are intended only to indicate its general purport)

This Bill seeks to amend the Constitution to limit the period for which a person could serve as Prime Minister, to provide for the recall of members of the House of Representatives, and to permit only candidates who have earned more than fifty per cent of the votes cast in their respective constituencies to be elected as members of the House of Representatives.

By clause 2, the proposed Act would come into operation on such date as is fixed by the President by Proclamation. By clause 3, the proposed Act would be construed as altering the Constitution.

With respect to term limits for the office of Prime Minister, the Bill would, by clause 8, amend the Constitution to limit service as Prime Minister to no more than ten years and six months, whether such service is continuous or has been interrupted. A Prime Minister would therefore be required to vacate his office upon attaining that length of service. No account would, however, be taken of any time spent serving as acting Prime Minister for the purposes of calculating length of service. Further, no one would be appointed as Prime Minister who has served ten years or more in that office, whether or not such service is continuous or has been interrupted.

In relation to the recall of members of the House of Representatives, the Bill would, by clause 5, amend section 49(2) of the Constitution to require a member of the House of Representatives to vacate his seat where the Speaker informs the House that he has received from the Chairman of the Elections and Boundaries Commission, a petition requesting that the member be recalled and that a bye-election be held in the constituency that the member represents. The petition would need to be supported by at least two-thirds of all the persons who, on the date of issuance of the petition, were registered voters in that constituency.

By clause 6, a new section 49B of the Constitution would be inserted to provide for the procedure relating to the application for, and the issuance of, a recall petition, as well as the casting of ballots in support of the petition and the announcement of the vacancy of the seat of the member of the House of Representatives who is the subject of the recall petition.

Two registered voters in a constituency, who also reside in the constituency, would be required to apply to the Elections and Boundaries Commission for the issuance of a petition for the recall of the member of the House of Representatives who was elected to represent that constituency and for the holding of a bye-election in that constituency. An application for a recall petition would be required to be in a form which would be included in a new Fourth Schedule to the Constitution. A person would not be able to apply for a recall petition before the expiration of three years, or after the expiration of four years, from the first poll of the last general election. The Elections and Boundaries Commission would not, however, approve the application unless it is supported by at least ten per cent of all the persons who are registered to vote in the constituency.

A person who is registered to vote, and who resides, in the particular constituency would be able to canvass for signatures in support of an application for a recall petition after the expiration of three years from the first poll of the last general election. The text of the petition would need to be on each page containing the signatures of persons who are in support of the application. A person who canvasses for signatures would be required to make a statutory declaration that he is registered to vote, and resides, in the constituency specified in the petition, that the signatures were voluntarily given and were not obtained by means of harassment, intimidation or threat, and that to the best of his knowledge, the signatures were given by persons whose names appear on the list of registered voters in the constituency.

Where the Elections and Boundaries Commission is satisfied that the application has received the support of at least ten per cent of all the persons who are registered to vote in the constituency specified in the application, the Chairman of the Elections and Boundaries Commission would so certify on the application and the Elections and Boundaries Commission would approve the application in principle. The applicants, the member concerned and the Speaker would then be notified of the approval of the application and the Elections and Boundaries Commission would issue the petition within three days of giving such notice.

The Elections and Boundaries Commission would cause the petition to be published in the Gazette, newspapers and on its website and would make it available for inspection and for the casting of ballots in support of it for a period of twenty-one days. Registered voters would be able to cast their ballots at advertised locations between 8.00 a.m. and 4.00 p.m., including on Saturdays and Sundays, but not on public holidays. In as much as the Elections and Boundaries Commission may not have the resources to ensure that each registered voter who casts a ballot still resides in the constituency, a person would be required to make a statutory declaration that he is registered to vote, and resides in the constituency, before he casts his ballot.

Where the Elections and Boundaries Commission is satisfied that the petition has received the support of at least two-thirds of all the registered voters in the constituency, the petition would be certified by the Chairman of the Elections and Boundaries Commission and forwarded to the Speaker who would inform the House of Representatives and announce that the seat of the member concerned has fallen vacant.

A new section 49C of the Constitution would provided for the supervision of the casting of ballots, the daily recording of the number of ballots cast and the announcement of the results of the casting of the ballots on the last day only. The form of the ballot would be included in the new Fourth Schedule.

The Bill would amend section 73 of the Constitution by preventing a candidate in a general election from being elected as the member of the House of Representatives for a constituency, unless he obtains more than fifty per cent of the votes cast in the constituency. Where none of the candidates in a constituency in a general election obtains more than fifty per cent of the votes cast in the constituency, a supplementary poll between those candidates who earned the highest and second highest number of votes would be held within fifteen days of the declaration of the results of the general election and the list of electors for the purposes of the supplementary poll would be the same list which was used for the purposes of the general election.

This Bill would amend section 67 of the Constitution to provide that where a supplementary poll is to held after a general election, no session of Parliament shall commence before the results of the supplementary poll have been declared, except that where an emergency arises of such a nature that in the opinion of the Prime Minister it is necessary for the two Houses of Parliament to be summoned before all the supplementary polls can be held, the President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, would be able to summon the two Houses of the preceding Parliament. The supplementary polls would, however, proceed and the Parliament that has been summoned would, if not sooner dissolved, again stand dissolved on the day on which the last supplementary poll is held. The Bill would also amend section 76 of the Constitution to prevent the President from appointing a Prime Minister before the results of all supplementary polls have been declared.

Finally, the Bill would make consequential amendments to the Representation of the People Act, the Registration Rules and the Election Rules, so as to facilitate the implementation of the proposed Act.
